VERDICT IN KINNEY CASE IS NOT GUILTY, WHEN ACT WAS COMMITTED, ON ACCOUNT OF INSANITY

WILL REMAIN IN CUSTODY UNTIL COMMITTED TO SOME INSTITUTION

Jury Retired at 5:10 Last Evening and Rendered Verdict at 10:20 This Forenoon-- Defendant Unmoved

"Not guilty on account of insanity at the time the act was committed" was the verdict in the trial of Thomas Kinney for the murder of William Adams handed in by the jury at the county court this morning at 10:20 o'clock. The case had been given to the jury at 5:10 last evening at the conclusion of the trial, after the arguments had been made and Judge J. F. Taylor had delivered his charge.

After the delivery of the verdict Judge Taylor directed that the sheriff take the defendant into custody and have charge of him until arrangements could be made for committing him to some institution. Kinney, who had been brought into court when the jury announced it was ready to render a verdict was utterly unmoved by the finding. He stared fixedly ahead of him, and neither by word, look or sign, displayed the slightest emotion. He only started when the sheriff touched him on the shoulder and motioned him to come with him back to the cell from which he had been taken.

This verdict was one of two alternatives in accordance with the charge of Judge Taylor to the jury. In charging the 12 men the court stated that the jury could return only two verdicts according to law. One was guilty of murder in the first degree and the other acquittal with insanity as the cause of the shooting. He further stated that a verdict in the second degree manslaughter could not be rendered unless the jury took the bull by the horns and rendered such a verdict out of accordance with the law and evidence and added that such a verdict would then be absurd. The court further stated that the commonwealth in this case had shown conclusively that this was a first degree murder and that the verdict would have to be such unless the jury was of the opinion that Kinney was insane when he committed the deed.

The arguments began at 1:30 yesterday afternoon, and were closed at 4:30. Attorney Robert W. Irwin addressed the jury for the defense for over two hours, while District Attorney G. L. V. Acheson occupied less than an hour with his address. There was much speculation at the county seat as to the result of the verdict when the jury retired and much interest was manifested in Charleroi this morning before the result was known.

There are many diverse opinions here in regard to the verdict. Some are of the opinion that a first degree verdict should have been rendered in view of the enormity of the crime and that justice has miscarried. These believe that the prosecution was weak, as no testimony was introduced to show premeditation when a number of witnesses were to be found who would testify that Kinney had threatened to kill Adams on various occasions in the past. There were also many here who sympathized with Kinney's family and on that account are glad that a first degree verdict was not rendered.

SUPT. IS READY TO ENROLL PUPILS

Those Desiring to Enter School Can Make Arrangements This Week

In order to facilitate the work of opening the schools on Monday, August 29, Prof. Pentz requests that all parents who have children to place in school, both beginners and those who have attended school in other districts, to bring such children to the building nearest their place of residence for enrollment and assignment on Friday August 26 between 2 and 3 p. m. or on Saturday, August 27, between 9 and 12 p. m. The principals will be in their buildings at these hours. Parents should accompany the children who are to be enrolled for the first time in school. All others who report for enrollment must bring a paper signed by the parent and containing the full name of the pupil and the date and place of his or her birth.

NO SETTLEMENT OF ILLINOIS STRIKE

Affects This District by Reason of Assessment for Distressed Miners

Hope of ending soon the strike of coal miners in Illinois ended yesterday when the Illinois Coal Operators Association voted unanimously at a meeting at Chicago not to accept the miners' scale. In all 130 companies controlling 350 mines, were represented at the conference. Each company gave a bond to uphold the resolution and stand out against the miners.

This action is of vital interest to the miners of this district, inasmuch as each worker is assessed a dollar a week to aid the distressed families of the Illinois strikers. It was hoped and expected that after the Indianapolis convention a settlement could be effected in the Illinois field whereby the strike assessment could be lifted, but the recent action of the operators seems to preclude all hope in that quarter.

Drinks Whiskey Instead Of Beer, Which Brought Oblivion

Belle Vernon Woman Admits Being Drunk, But Says She Isn't Addicted to the Habit--

A Pitiful Case.

"I was drunk, I don't deny it," admitted Myrtle Rhodaback, a Belle Vernon young woman, in police court this morning to Burgess Geo. W. Risbeck, after spending a night in the lockup, where he had been committed on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

"I came over from Belle Vernon yesterday evening. I had a little booze before I started, and I met her and her man here and we had some more booze. Then I met a fellow, and we had more booze. I was looking for her on the street, when I fell down, and don't remember what happened. I was drunk all right."

"Are you in the habit of getting drunk?" asked the Burgess.

"No, I ain't been drunk before in a long time. I take a glass of beer like every one else but don't often get drunk."

"Were you drinking beer?"

"No, whiskey."

Myrtle was arrested about 11 o'clock by Officer Osborne, who found her lying on McKean avenue unable to navigate. With her was Thomas Hogan from up the river, who was also arrested on the same charge.

Further questioning elicited the fact that Myrtle had figured before in police circles. She admitted she had kept house for a man who was arrested on a charge of stealing brass, and detained in the lockup at Monessen a couple of days as a witness. Who the other woman and companions of Myrtle were last night was not divulged.

Burgess Risbeck imposed a fine of $1 and costs on both Myrtle and Hogan, and as Myrtle had but a dollar and Hogan was broke, both were committed to the lockup to serve time.

"I don't care," said Myrtle, who had arranged her hair during the hearing and otherwise brushed up her toilet. Under other conditions she would have been a rather prepossessing young woman, and those who witnessed the hearing felt much pity for her degradation.

CALLS ON CHARLEROI FOR HELP

THREE BUILDINGS BURNED JUDGE UMBEL TAKES HAND

Fire destroyed two buildings at Stockdale last evening, and badly damaged another. A fourth building was demolished and carried away to prevent the spread of the fire and in that manner the flames were prevented from doing still greater damage. The estimated loss is $30,000.

The fire, the origin of which is unknown, started in the store of Robert Robinson in the Hanel building. This was a total loss, together with the six-room house of Peter Neal adjoining. The residence occupied by Robert England on the other side was also badly damaged, saved from total destruction.

As the flames were heading toward the hotel the one-story building of Joseph U derwood, occupied by the postoffice was torn down after the contents had been removed. This enabled the bucket brigade to control the fire. As the town has no water works or fire department a call was sent to Charleroi for help when the fire looked as though it would sweep the town. One company responded, and loading six chemical outfits and a supply of buckets onto a summer street car, a quick run was made to Stockdale. The flames were under control, however when the firemen arrived.

Charleroi Sets Pace In Police Methods

Uniontown Officials Come Here Today to Inspect Our Auto Patrol

A party of Uniontown borough officials and citizens arrived in town this morning in the packard touring car of Chas. Johnson, to inspect Charleroi's police auto patrol. Uniontown wants to be in the line of progressives, and as Charleroi set the pattern in this section the town is able to give pointers. In the party were S. W. Gaddis and W. D. Grice, the councilman committee, Chas. Johnson, L. L. Crawford, and Chief of Police Frank McCarthy. The Charleroi officials extended all possible courtesies, and the visitors were favorably impressed with the appearance and utility of the patrol.

YOUNG MEN WANTED FOR BUSINESS POSITIONS

Never in the past ten years has the demand for young men been so great as at the present time. Every young man or boy who has finished our course in bookkeeping shorthand and typewriting is today in a good position, some of them starting with as much as $60.00 per month.

In this strenuous age the business man has no time to conduct a training school. He expects the young people the employees to be thoroughly prepared and able to do satisfactory work from the start.

To the young man or woman looking for a position in the business world where they will have a chance to advance, this school offers unsurpassed opportunities. The courses of study are thorough and complete and have stood the test of time.

Douglas graduates are known everywhere for their efficiency. Business men know this, and as a result, we receive more calls for our graduates every year than we are able to fill. Young ladies well as young men are wanted. A knowledge of shorthand typewriting and bookkeeping will do more for a girl who wants to make real money than a college education.

We count the strictest investigation. We can prove every claim we make. Our graduates get the best positions and they are making good. You can do as well.

Special rates to those who enroll during August.

The following letter was received Monday morning. We have no one to send to the position. I will gladly give the name and address of the firm to any young man who is qualified to fill the place.

Mr. M. Adams, Douglas Business College, Charleroi, Pa.

Dear Sir: I have an opening for a young man stenographer. Will only consider a bright young fellow who is determined to succeed by applying himself to the work.

My work is varied, my correspondence is not large and will be easy even for a beginner. Will have some account work and reports to make out which require accuracy. If you have a man you can recommend send him up. If not perhaps one of the other Douglas schools can recommend one.

Yours respectfully, E. R. Miller, General Manager

Council Asks Them To Meet and Discuss State Laws

DANGER CAN BE AVOIDED

Ordinance to Be Presented Governing Washing of Vehicles on Streets

At a special meeting of council last evening steps were taken to provide for the safety of the public in connection with the speed and regulation of street cars and automobiles on the streets. This was discussed at some length, and the clerk was instructed to notify representatives of both street railways and the drivers of all automobiles to appear at an adjourned meeting of council Monday evening in order to come to an understanding.

The object of the meeting is to read and discuss the State law regarding the speed and conduct of both street cars and autos. It is expected to come to a clear understanding on this subject, and to impress upon machine owners the importance of taking the proper side of the street in passing street cars, and to blow their horns and slow down at all crossings and when turning corners. The street cars will also be required to slow down at all crossings and to ring their bells whether they stop or not.

The feasibility of reserving Lincoln avenue for storing automobiles, and placing a guard on the street during the celebration here September 3, when the Republican State campaign will be opened, was also discussed. The proposition seemed to be favorably received, and the matter was referred to committee.

In view of complaints in regard to the washing of buggies and other vehicles on the streets and alleys, the ordinance committee was instructed to prepare an ordinance covering the matter. The committee reported in favor of extending the sewer along the Pittsburgh Plate Glass property, and the meeting adjourned to meet again Monday night.

CITIZENS TO MEET FRIDAY EVENING

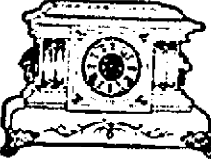

Final Arrangements Will Be Made to Honor J. K. Tener

An open meeting of citizens of Charleroi and North Charleroi has been called for Friday evening in the Bank of Charleroi Hall by the Republican precinct chairman of the borough. The object is to make final arrangements and discuss plans for the big opening rally that will be held here Saturday evening, September 3, by the Republican State committee. As the citizens generally desire to honor Congressman J. K. Tener, regardless of party affiliations all are invited to attend and help make the rally a neighborly tribute to Mr. Tener.

In view of the fact that all the other towns are making preparations, the committee desires that Charleroi shall not be backward in this respect. Therefore all are urged to attend the meeting.

Why Not in Charleroi?

Because of the development of the
industry of making automobiles the
city of Flint, Michigan has increased
in population nearly 200 per cent during the past ten years. In 1900 the
population was 13,103, and the census
this year shows the population to be 38,559, an increase of 25,447 in the ten years. To be exact, the percentage of increase is 194.2 per cent.

It is somewhat remarkable that the
manufacture of automobiles should
reach such proportions in the Michigan
cities when so much of the material
and component parts have to be manufactured in the Monongahela valley.
In the manufacture of these machines
Charleroi furnishes plate glass fronts,
and the best lenses manufactured.
Monessen furnishes steel tubing for
axles and other parts, and Donora is
also drawn upon for raw and finished
materials. The Liggett Steel Spring
works, across the river from Monongahela, makes automobile springs in
immense quantities, and the district
furnishes much of the other material
used in the construction of autos.

That being the case there is no
reason why a complete factory should
not be located in our midst. If the principal parts can be purchased profitably in this section they can be
assembled here as well as at a distant
point. The automobile industry is growing, and there is no reason why
they should not be located where the
component parts can be produced
more quickly and cheaply.

Good Advice

In his Utica speech the other day
Col. Theodore Roosevelt told the farmers to cooperate and study business conditions so that they shall be better able to meet the problems facing them.

"Don't imitate the morality of
some of these big business men,"
were his words of warning, "but get
their efficiency."

He deplored the rich man who
spends a fortune on a fancy farm.
The crowd applauded. But the Colonel in his lecture of the soil
if they scoffed at bankers and lawyers and big business men because they considered the bad as a class he could
not be with them.

"You must pass judgment not upon
occupation but upon conduct," he
averred. "I want to be able to recognize the Christian by the way he

acts on week-day; I'm against the
crook, rich or poor."

This advice applies to all who rail
against capital and the so called interests. Because of this much of the social conflicts arise. It is
conduct and not occupation that should be criticized. Without the capital and the big interests human
progress and development would be
in a bad way.

HEED THE WARNING!

Backache is the Signal that Kidney Diseases are
Nigh

Who doesn't dread the advanced
stages of kidney troubles—Bright's
disease, diabetes, dropsy and gravel.
But today, throughout America, there
are tens of thousands suffering the
torments of hopeless agony just because they failed to heed the first
signal, the certain warning of future
misery—backache.

Backache means that your kidneys
are weak; they may have become inflamed from cold or injury, but in
all probability they are stuffed up,
clogged with impurities from the
blood, for you know, of course, that
the blood passes through the kidneys
every few minutes, and that the kidneys strain the blood of its impurities which pass out through the urine.

Stop kidney diseases at the start,
that's the easiest way, and Thomp-
son's Barosma is the surest remedy.
W. F. Hennings sells it, and is willing to guarantee it to stop backache,
sideache, and sharp shooting pains,
and to cure Bright's disease, and end
all kidney, liver and bladder trouble,
or money back.

It is a great maker of pure blood,
and a builder of flesh, because it promptly cleans the kidneys, and puts
them in such perfect condition that
the impurities are thoroughly strained from the blood as it passes through
and are promptly eliminated with the urine. Thompson's Barosma is only 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. W. F.
Hennings.

HENS NOT STUPID.

Them by Their Ancestors.

Every automobilist knows that when
his car approaches a hen instead of
calmly stepping to the side of the road
and safety in nine cases out of ten
she runs along ahead in hysterical excitement, doing what she should have done in the first place only when completely exhausted and then only by accident apparently. Other domestic
animals have the same annoying habit,
and as it often causes their wholly
needless death, the usual explanation
of it is their stupidity. That is an unfair criticism, for neither birds nor
animals are ever stupid—never are,
that is, about meeting exigencies
which their ancestors were in the habit
of meeting.

It is the lesson of immemorial experience for all these creatures that from
the pursuit of an enemy that cannot
be fought there is safety if anywhere
in straightaway flight at topmost
speed. Motion in any other direction
would give the pursuer a fatal advantage by enabling him to "cut corners"
and cover a shorter distance than his
selected prey. The hen's mistake is not in running along the road, but in
assuming that the automobile wants
to catch her and will do so if it can.
That assumption is a perfectly natural
one, and every living hen is the descendant of innumerable generations
of hens that acted upon it exactly as
she does.—New York Times.

GOLD LEAF.

Made Now Practically as It Was Made
Nine Centuries Ago.

In an article on gold leaf in the Magazine of Commerce John Mastin says
that just as the date of the discovery
of gold is too remote even to be guessed at so is the origin of gold leaf lost
in antiquity.

On some of the most ancient murmies discovered gold leaf has been used on the skin, tongue, teeth and hair.
In some instances on the corneas also.
It also appears on tombs, monuments
and the like, and, strange to say,
though gilding with "thin sheets of
hammered gold" and "skins of gold"— otherwise gold leaf—was known to be
practiced at least in the eighth century B. C., the process of bringing the
gold into these fine sheets or "skins"
was, at any rate in the eleventh century A. D., substantially the same as
that used today, no advance whatever
having been made in the intervening
nine centuries.

Further, on some of the Grecian pottery of the fifth century the gold leaf
used is as thin as that used today, so that in results obtained also we have
not advanced in the least, but still keep
practically to the same average thickness as that used on the Egyptian coffins of the third century A. D. and most of the Greek vases of the fifth.

Brougham and Muffled Port.

Lord Brougham who as a member
of the house of commons was a most abstemious man, upon his promotion to the peerage acquired less commendable habits. During his long and refrain from rejecting the reform bill
of 1832 "five tumblers of muffled port,
with a dash of brandy, were brought
to him at intervals." When he came to his last sentence "I warn you, I implore you—on my bended knee
I supplicate you—reject not this bill!"
he knelt on the woodcock, where he slipped to the floor. It is recorded in the "Lives of the Lord Chancellors"
that "he remained some time as if in
prayer, but his friends, alarmed lest
he should be suffering from the effects
of muffled port, picked him up and
placed him safely on the woodcock."

When the Barber Was a Wit.

In original literature the barber is
a great figure, and Arabian tales are full of him. In Italy and Spain he was often the brightest man in town, and
his shop was headquarters for wit
and intrigue. Jassamin became famous as a poet in southern France and
recited his verses with razor, scissors,
brush and comical gesture as he dressed
the hair of fine ladies and gentle-
men in his shop. He had a great run,
made money, lived famous, and smiles
made a book about him.

YOUNG MEN ARE WANTED FOR OFFICE POSITIONS

Never in the past ten years has the demand for young men been so great as at the present time. Every young man or boy who has finished our course in bookkeeping, shorthand and typewriting, is today in a good position, some of them starting with as much as $60.00 per month.

Young men wishing to make the most of their opportuni-

fers them. The courses are thorough and include everything
necessary for a complete commercial education.

Young ladies who wish to be independent and self-support-

TESTING FIRE CLAY.

The Most Practical Method is to Literally Eat It.

Fire clay has been in use for centuries, and yet I believe the industry
is one which lacks definite laws more
than any other, including those which
are either modern or ancient and of
less prominence. You can go to a manufacturer of steel and specify
what you want by actual figures or
statements and you can check the product by chemical analysis or mechanical
tests and thus make sure you get what you need. The producer knows how to combine certain elements and what
quantities of various kinds to combin-
in order to get a result at least very
closely approaching what you call for.
But not so in the fire clay business. In the past the most skilled and highest salaries chemists have been employed
to make tests, to promote and carry
through investigations on the nature of product and to study the workings of
certain manufactured and elaborated
articles derived therefrom. The result
has been, generally speaking, confusion
worse confounded. Two professors, working at similar times on brick or
clay obtained from the same source
and manufactured under exactly equal
conditions, have recorded diametrically
opposed conclusions. The same scientists at different periods have reached
vastly varying conclusions when testing identical qualities and shapes of
bricks, so can you wonder if a prominent fire clay manufacturer should ex-
claim, as I heard one on an occasion
after having the above experience,
"All tests of fire clay are empirical, and I would sooner trust our superintendent
to pick and select his clays in the
old fashioned way than pay a high fee
for a highbrow's recommendations?"
The chief method of testing fire clay
by a practical man is literally to eat
it. He can detect grit and sand best
by that method, and a good fire clay (free from silica, quartzite or flint clay) is free from grit. His only other personal test is by experiment.—Engineering Magazine.

WHISTLER TALES.

Some Amusing Peculiarities of the Eccentric Artist.

BARRING OUT BILL BEARERS.

He Knew the Knock of Each Collector and the Amount It Represented.

London Co. Lived Had Good Reason to Fight Shy of the Eccentric Artist.

There was a steady stream of collectors at the King Street studio in those days, says a writer in the Century.

Whistler made no effort to conceal the fact that he was deeply in debt. One day as we were busily and silently working there came a loud business-like rap at the door. Whistler listened attentively.

"Psst!" said he. "That's one and ten."

Within half an hour there was another rap, not quite so loud.

"Two and six," said Whistler. "Psst!"

"What on earth do you mean?" I asked after a time.

"One pound ten shillings; two pounds six shillings. Vulgar tradesmen with their bills, colonel. They want payment. Ah, well!" he sighed with an exaggerated air of sadness and returned to his canvas.

Then came another knock, a most gentle, insinuating rap.

"Dear me," said Whistler, "that must be all of twenty! Poor fellow, I really must do something for him! So sorry I'm not in."

I could not take the situation so placidly and seized eagerly the first opportunity of financial aid that presented itself. A rich American, sojourning in London, asked me what he could purchase and take back with him in the way of art.

"By all means get a set of Whistler's etchings. Unquestionably he will make for you a selection. I'll speak to him." I told him, and hurried back with the good news.

Whistler was delighted, and for a day worked busily, overhauling and assorting his proofs. The selection was a splendid one and called for a substantial payment. It was arranged that Whistler should meet the purchaser at a bank in Queen Street the following morning and receive his check.

Most men under the circumstances would have thought of little else, but the next morning Whistler had wholly forgotten his engagement. He had begun a new canvas, and was completely absorbed in it. For a while

I expostulated in vain.

"Come, Whistler," I said finally, "you have been away from America so long that you don't appreciate the value of time to the traveler, particularly the American traveler. You must not keep the man waiting."

"Very well," said he, laying down his brush, with a sigh. "Now we'll go."

"Why we?" I replied. "I don't want to go," I protested firmly. To tell the truth, I was looking forward with a great deal of comfort to a morning all to myself.

"Oh, but you must," he said calmly, bringing my coat and hat, and presently we stood in front of the house signaling a cab.

One came up readily enough, but, after one scrutinizing look upon the cabby's part, drove swiftly by; another went through the same strange proceedings. I looked questioningly at Whistler—this odd circumstance had happened before we were together—but Whistler was calmly signaling. At length a cabby took us in.

Whistler always carried as a walking stick a long, slender wand, a sort of a mahlstick, nearly three-quarters of his own height. We were no sooner seated than he began poking his stick at the horse. The animal reared, plunged wildly and started down the street at a breakneck gallop, while the astonished cabby swore freely and tugged desperately at the reins. Whistler looked calmly ahead and kept poking.

Butcher boys and grocer boys made wild leaps for safety; outraged cabbies whipped their horses out of the way just in time; burly draymen bawled curses after us, and still we went merrily on. Little wonder, thought I, in the midst of my amazement and resentment, that Whistler never gets the same cab twice.

Suddenly he began waving his cane and shouting "Whoa!" He took the astonished cabby severely to task for driving so fast upon the public highway and ordered him back to a corner we had just passed.

Here a greengrocer's shop, with its orderly and colorful array of fruits and vegetables, had caught Whistler's eye as we whirled by. He surveyed it critically now from two different positions, the cabby merely obeying his orders, under the belief, I presume, that it was policy to humor a lunatic.

"Isn't it beautiful!" exclaimed Whistler. He pointed his long cane at one corner. "I believe I'll have that crate of oranges moved over there—against that background of green. Yes, that's better," he added contentedly.

We drove on to the bank, where we found the American pacing up and down in no pleasant frame of mind; but Whistler soon had him pacified, and we left him waving and smiling adieu at us.

The incident at the greengrocer's shop reads like an arrant affectation. It was not, however, Whistler, as usual, was merely most natural. The following morning he posted his easel at the corner and painted the shop that pleased him.

Four Human Nature.

The woman who had succeeded in that rather difficult task—making a boarding house pay—was confiding to a friend some of the tricks of the trade.

"While you must never allow your boarders to get too far behind in their payments, it is also true that you will profit considerably by allowing them a little leeway. So long as you are sure of your money it pays a landlady to have her boarders a week or two behind in their board."

"I don't see that," interrupted her friend.

"Well, I'll tell you," continued the landlady. "When a man owes back board you have him at a certain disadvantage. Not one in a hundred under such circumstances has the nerve at mealtimes to ask for a second helping."—New York Times.

The Human Lobster.

The lobster has always appealed to the Englishman as affording a nickname for his fellow Englishman.

"Lobster" was a favorite term of abuse among the Elizabethans, though it is only conjectured that an allusion to red faces was conveyed. As signifying a soldier, "lobster" originated in the civil war, being applied to the Roundhead cuirassiers, as Clarendon explains, "because of the bright from shells with which they were covered."

Afterward the allusion was transferred to the soldier's red uniform. But that was the "boiled lobster." The "raw lobster" was naturally the man in blue, the policeman. In earlier days we find Crose explaining that "to boll one's lobster" meant for a clergyman to become a soldier.—London Chronicle.

Effective Home Cure for Tuberculosis

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only tremendously expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benighted, but none can safely return to their homes. Eckman's Alternative is effective in curing Bronchitis, Asthma and more serious affections of the lungs. No leaving home and friends is necessary. For instance, 221 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J. Gentlemen: In the Fall of 1905, I contracted a very severe cold which settled on my lungs. At first I began to raise sputum and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alternative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January 1906, I resumed my regular occupation having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now four years since my cure has been effected and I cannot praise Eckman's Alternative too highly. I have recommended it to others with excellent results.

(Signed) W. M. TATEM.
Eckman's Alternative is good for all Throat and Lung troubles, and is on sale in Charleston by W. F. Hennings and other druggists. It can also be obtained at or procured from your local druggist. Ask for Booklet of Cured Cases or write for evidence to the Eckman Laboratory, Phila., Pa.

MORE BANK TALK

Did it ever occur to you why all good business men keep a checking account with a bank? We'll tell you. It enables them to keep their funds in a more secure place than the safe. It gives them a better standing in the business world. It enables them to pay their bills by check, the returned check being an undisputable receipt.

Individuals find a checking account very convenient and a source of saving. Money in one's pocket is often spent on the spur of the moment, while one disposed to think twice before drawing on his balance in the bank.

A CHINESE BANQUET.

Culinary Mysteries That Bewildered an Englishwoman.

One moment we were eating ducks' eggs whose blackened, lime flavored whites indicated that their age was unimpeachable; the next we were grappling with sea weeds, macaroni and the slippery sharks' fins that eluded our clumsily manipulated sticks. Now we tackled--not without fear--unknown meats and vegetables cooked in sugar, fresh shrimps, mushrooms from Mongolia, young bamboo sprouts, pigeons' eggs and a hundred different foreign tasting messes. Then clean plates were given to us, and bowls of sickly pink sirup, sweet potato and Indian corn cakes of dusky hue were set before each one. These were only crevice fillers and concluded the first and lighter portion of the repast. Now came the real substantial meal, where in every dish had an accompaniment of smaller ones, containing gravies, etc., in which to dip the morsel taken from the central bowl.

There was stewed duck cooked without salt, roast sucking pig, forcemeat balls and chicken; there were soups of birds' nest, of mushroom, of vegetables and of sea slugs. There was grilled fresh water fish, which, according to custom, was helped from the top side only, for the Chinese remembers his servant. And, finally, at the conclusion the inevitable small bowl of rice and rice water was set before each person.

After some three hours, with a feeling of thankfulness that all was over, pipes, cigarettes and tea were served, and it seemed to me that the delicious aroma which rose from the latter soothed our senses and almost dispelled the antipathy that had been growing on us for all things Chinese. Mary Moore in London Express.

The Kind Needed.

"Dear me," said the first young woman, taking her initial lesson in golf, "what shall I do now? This ball is in a hole."

"Well, let me see," said her companion, rapidly turning the leaves of a book of instructions. "I presume you will have to take a stick of the right shape to get it out."

"Oh, yes; of course," was the somewhat cynical reply. "Well, see if you can find one shaped like a dustpan and brush."--New York Tribune.

Kissing in Iceland.

Among old time laws against kissing those of Iceland appear to have been the most severe. Banishment was the penalty laid down for kissing another man's wife, either with or without her consent. The same punishment was enforced for kissing an unmarried woman against her will; if it could be proved that she had consented to be kissed the offender was still liable to a fine of a great quantity of cloth for each offense.

WILL REMAIN IN CUSTODY UNTIL COMMITTED TO SOME INSTITUTION

Jury Retired at 5:10 Last Evening and Rendered Verdict at 10:20 This Forenoon—Defendant Unmoved

"Not guilty on account of insanity at the time the act was committed" was the verdict in the trial of Thomas Kinney for the murder of William Adams handed in by the jury at the county court this morning at 10:20 o'clock. The case had been given to the jury at 5:10 last evening at the conclusion of the trial, after the arguments had been made and Judge J. F. Taylor had delivered his charge.

After the delivery of the verdict Judge Taylor directed that the sheriff take the defendant into custody and have charge of him until arrangements could be made for committing him to some institution.

Kinney, who had been brought into court when the jury announced it was ready to render a verdict was utterly unmoved by the finding. He stared fixedly ahead of him, and neither by word, look or sign, displayed the slightest emotion. He only started when the sheriff touched him on the shoulder and motioned him to come with him back to the cell from which he had been taken.

This verdict was one of two alternatives in accordance with the charge of Judge Taylor to the jury. In charging the 12 men the court stated that the jury could return only two verdicts according to law. One was guilty of murder in the first degree and the other acquittal with insanity as the cause of the shooting. He further stated that a verdict in the second degree manslaughter could not be rendered unless the jury took the bull by the horns and rendered such a verdict out of accordance with the law and evidence and added that such a verdict would then be absurd. The court further stated that the commonwealth in this case had shown conclusively that this was a first degree murder and that the verdict would have to be such unless the jury was of the opinion that Kinney was insane when he committed the deed.

The arguments began at 1:30 yesterday afternoon, and were closed at 4:30. Attorney Robert W. Irwin addressed the jury for the defense for over two hours, while District Attorney C. L. V. Acheson occupied less than an hour with his address. There was much speculation at the county seat as to the result of the verdict when the jury retired and much interest was manifested in Charleroi this morning before the result was known.

There are many diverse opinions here in regard to the verdict. Some are of the opinion that a first degree verdict should have been rendered in view of the enormity of the crime and that justice has miscarried. These believe that the prosecution was weak, as no testimony was introduced to show premeditation when a number of witnesses were to be found who would testify that Kinney had threatened to kill Adams on various occasions in the past. There were also many here who sympathized with Kinney's family and on that account are glad that a first degree verdict was not rendered.

Drinks Whiskey Instead Of Beer, Which Brought Oblivion

Belle Vernon Woman Admits Being Drunk, But Says She Isn't Addicted to the Habit—
A Pitiful Case.

"I was drunk, I don't deny it," admitted Myrtle Rhodack, a Belle Vernon young woman, in police court this morning to Burgess Geo. W. Risbeck, after spending a night in the lockup, where he had been committed on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

"I came over from Belle Vernon yesterday evening. I had a little booze before I started, and I met her and her man here and we had some more booze. Then I met a fellow, and we had more booze. I was looking for her on the street, when I fell down, and don't remember what happened. I was drunk all right."

"Are you in the habit of getting drunk?" asked the Burgess.

"No, I ain't been drunk before in a long time. I take a glass of beer like every one else but don't often get drunk."

"Were you drinking beer?"

"No, whiskey."

Myrtle was arrested about 11 o'clock by Officer Osborne, who found

her lying on McKean avenue unable to navigate. With her was Thomas Hogan from up the river, who was also arrested on the same charge.

Further questioning elicited the fact that Myrtle had figured before in police circles. She admitted she had kept house for a man who was arrested of a charge of stealing brass, and detained in the lockup at Monessen a couple of days as a witness. Who the other woman and companions of Myrtle were last night was not divulged.

Burgess Risbeck imposed a fine of $1 and costs on both Myrtle and Hogan, and as Myrtle had but a dollar and Hogan was broke, both were committed to the lockup to serve time.

"I don't care," said Myrtle, who had arranged her hair during the hearing and otherwise brushed up her toilet. Under other conditions she would have been a rather prepossessing young woman, and those who witnessed the hearing felt much pity for her degradation.

Charleroi Sets Pace In Police Methods

A party of Uniontown borough officials and citizens arrived in town this morning in the packard touring car of Chas. Johnson, to inspect Charleroi's police auto patrol. Uniontown wants to be in the line of progressives, and as Charleroi set the pattern in this section the town is able to give pointers. In the party were S. W. Gaddis and W. D. Grice, the councilman committee, Chas. Johnson, L. L. Crawford, and Chief of Police Frank McCarthy. The Charleroi officials extended all possible courtesies, and the visitors were favorably impressed with the appearance and utility of the patrol.

Never in the past ten years has the demand for young men been so great as at the present time. Every young man or boy who has finished our course in bookkeeping shorthand and typewriting is today in a good position, some of them starting with as much as $60.00 per month.

In this strenuous age the business man has no time to conduct a training school. He expects the young people the employees to be thoroughly prepared and able to do satisfactory work from the start.

To the young man or woman looking for a position in the business world where they will have a chance to advance, this school offers unsurpassed opportunities. The courses of study are thorough and complete and have stood the test of time.

Douglas graduates are known everywhere for their efficiency. Business men know this and as a result, we receive more calls for our graduates every year than we are able to fill.

Young ladies well as young men are wanted. A knowledge of shorthand typewriting and bookkeeping will do more for a girl who wants to make real money than a college education.

We court the strictest investigation. We can prove every claim we make. Our graduates get the best positions and they are making good. You can do as well.

Special rates to those who enroll during August.

Douglas Business College.

The following letter was received Monday morning. We have no one to send to the position. I will gladly give the name and address of the firm to any young man who is qualified to fill the place.

Mr. M. Adams,
Douglas Business College,
Charleroi, Pa.

Dear Sir:
I have an opening for a young man stenographer. Will only consider a bright young fellow who is determined to succeed by applying himself to the work.

My work is varied, my correspondence is not large and will be easy even for a beginner. Will have some account work and reports to make out which require accuracy. If you have a man you can recommend send him up. If not perhaps one of the other Douglas schools can recommend one.

Yours respectfully,
E. R. Miller,
General Manager

Council Asks Them To Meet and Discuss State Laws

DANGER CAN BE AVOIDED

Ordinance to Be Presented Governing Washing of Vehicles on Streets

At a special meeting of council last evening steps were taken to provide for the safety of the public in connection with the speed and regulation of street cars and automobiles on the streets. This was discussed at some length, and the clerk was instructed to notify representatives of both street railways and the drivers of all automobiles to appear at an adjourned meeting of council Monday evening in order to come to an understanding.

The object of the meeting is to read over and discuss the State law regulating the speed and conduct of both street cars and autos. It is expected to come to a clear understanding on this subject, and to impress upon machine owners the importance of taking the proper side of the street in passing street cars, and to blow their horns and slow down at all crossings and when turning corners. The street cars will also be required to slow down at all crossings and to ring their bells whether they stop or not.

The feasibility of reserving Lincoln avenue for storing automobiles, and placing a guard on the street during the celebration here September 8 when the Republican State campaign will be opened, was also discussed. The proposition seemed to be favorably received, and the matter was referred to committee.

In view of complaints in regard to the washing of buggies and other vehicles on the streets and alleys, the ordinance committee was instructed to prepare an ordinance covering the matter. The committee reported in favor of extending the sewer across the Pittsburgh Plate Glass property, and the meeting adjourned to meet again Monday night.

CITIZENS TO MEET FRIDAY EVENING

Final Arrangements Will Be Made to Honor J. K. Tener

An open meeting of citizens of Charleroi and North Charleroi has been called for Friday evening in the Bank of Charleroi Hall by the Republican precinct chairman of the borough. The object is to make final arrangements and discuss plans for the big opening rally that will be held here Saturday evening, September 3, by the Republican State committee. As the citizens generally desire to honor Congressman J. K. Tener, regardless of party affiliations, all are invited to attend and help make the rally a neighborly tribute to Mr. Tener.

In view of the fact that all the other towns are making preparations, the committee desires that Charleroi shall not be backward in this respect. Therefore all are urged to attend the meeting.

Local Firemen Respond To Call for Aid From Stockdale

THREE BUILDINGS BURNED

Fire destroyed two buildings at Stockdale last evening, and badly damaged another. A fourth building was demolished and carried away to prevent the spread of the fire and in that manner the flames were prevented from doing still greater damage. The estimated loss is $80,000.

The fire, the origin of which is unknown, started in the store of Robert Robinson in the Hanel building. This was a total loss, together with the six-room house of Peter Neal adjoining. The residence occupied by Robert England on the other side was also badly damaged, saved from total destruction.

As the flames were heading toward the hotel the one-story building of Joseph Underwood, occupied by the postoffice was torn down after the contents had been removed. This enabled the bucket brigade to control the fire. As the town has no water works or fire department a call was sent to Charleroi for help when the fire looked as though it would sweep the town. One company responded, and loading six chemical outfits and a supply of buckets onto a summer street car, a quick run was made to Stockdale. The flames were under control, however when the firemen arrived.

OFFICIATES NOW LIKE A VETERAN

Accompanied by a party of friends Chas. Ross Barton and Miss Helen Crill appeared at the office of Justice of the Peace John Jenkins last evening and were married. The groom is from Courtney and the bride from Monongahela. This is the second wedding the justice has performed since receiving his commission last May and he is now able to tie the knot as well as any official or minister.

SASSY MAN MAY LOSE LICENSE

South Brownsville Man, Too Independent, Reported to Court

JUDGE UMBEL TAKES HAND

Because E. Shickluna, proprietor of the Pennsylvania Hotel at South Brownsville is alleged to have said he "did not give a damn for Judge Umbel" the court issued a rule on him Tuesday to show cause why his liquor license should not be revoked.

The order was made by Judge R. E. Umbel who stated that he had received several complaints of late in regard to the manner in which the hotel was being conducted, but the limit was reached in a communication received Tuesday morning from T. J. Underwood and J. B. Myers, of California, Pa., and Joseph H. Underwood and Alfred Lachen, of Roscoe.

The letter said that on August 22nd, Monday evening, these four men together with their wives, went to the Pennsylvania hotel, ordered and paid for their dinners which amounted to $4. This they paid in advance. Proprietor Shickluna informed them that the dining room would be open until 7:30 only. At 7:23 they entered the building and found the doors leading to the dining room closed. On demanding admittance, it is said they were refused, although their wives were inside.

The men allege that Shickluna said, "I don't give a damn whether you eat or not." When informed that the matter would be reported to the court, he is said to have replied, "I don't give a damn for Judge Umbel," either. You can't do me any harm."

It is said that while they stood arguing the matter, the dining room girl appeared and stated that dinner was ready to serve, but that this had no effect on the proprietor. He further refused to return the price of the meals which he had received.

'Squire John Jenkins has procured a marriage license for Wm. Morris and Domestica Mikazite, both of Charleroi, and the wedding will likely occur at an early date.

SUPT. IS READY TO ENROLL PUPILS

Those Desiring to Enter School Can Make Arrangements This Week

In order to facilitate the work of opening the schools on Monday, August 29, Prof. Pentz requests that all parents who have children to place in school, both beginners and those who have attended school in other districts, to bring such children to the building nearest their place of residence for enrollment and assignment on Friday August 26 between 2 and 3 p. m. or on Saturday, August 27, between 9 and 12 p. m. The principals will be in their buildings at these hours. Parents should accompany the children who are to be enrolled for the first time in school. All others who report for enrollment must bring a paper signed by the parent and containing the full name of the pupil and the date and place of his or her birth.

Parents will bear in mind that the law requires all children to be vaccinated before they can be admitted to the public schools.

NO SETTLEMENT OF ILLINOIS STRIKE

Affects This District by Reason of Assessment for Distressed Miners

Hope of ending soon the strike of coal miners in Illinois ended yesterday when the Illinois Coal Operators' Association voted unanimously at a meeting at Chicago not to accept the miners' scale. In all 130 companies, controlling 350 mines, were represented at the conference. Each company gave a bond to uphold the resolution and stand out against the miners.

This action is of vital interest to the miners of this district, inasmuch as each worker is assessed a dollar a week to aid the distressed families of the Illinois strikers. It was hoped and expected that after the Indianapolis convention a settlement could be effected in the Illinois field whereby the strike assessment could be lifted, but the recent action of the operators seems to preclude all hope in that quarter.

D. C. Willard, principal of the Charleroi high school arrived in Charleroi yesterday and is aiding Prof. Pentz in completing arrangements for the opening of the schools on Monday.

Why Not in Charleroi?

Because of the development of the
industry of making automobiles the
city of Flint, Michigan has increased
in population nearly 200 per cent during the past ten years. In 1900 the
population was 13,103, and the census
this year shows the population to be 38,559, an increase of 25,447 in the ten years. To be exact, the percentage of increase is 194.2 per cent.

It is somewhat remarkable that the
manufacture of automobiles should
reach such proportions in the Michigan
cities when so much of the material
and component parts have to be manufactured in the Monongahela valley.
In the manufacture of these machines
Charleroi furnishes plate glass fronts,
and the best lenses manufactured.
Monessen furnishes steel tubing for
axles and other parts, and Donora is
also drawn upon for raw and finished
materials. The Liggett Steel Spring
works, across the river from Monon-
gahela, makes automobile springs in
immense quantities, and the district
furnishes much of the other material
used in the construction of autos.

That being the case there is no
reason why a complete factory should
not be located in our midst. If the
principal parts can be purchased pro-
fitably in this section they can be
assembled here as well as at a distant
point. The automobile industry is
growing, and there is no reason why
they should not be located where the
component parts can be produced
more quickly and cheaply.

Good Advice

In his Utica speech the other day
Col. Theodore Roosevelt told the farmers that they should cooperate and study business conditions so that they shall be better able to meet the
problems facing them.

"Don't imitate the morality of
some of the big business men,"
were his words of warning, "but get
their efficiency."

He deplored the rich man who
spends a fortune on a fancy farm.
The crowd applauded. But the Colonel into the hands of the soil of the farmer and the lawyer and big business men because they
considered the bad as a class he could
not be with them.

"You must pass judgment not upon
occupation but upon conduct," he
averred. "I want to be able to re-

cognize the Christian by the way he
acts on week-day; I'm against the
crook, rich or poor."

This advice applies to all who rail
against capital and the so called interests. Because of this much of
the social conflicts arise. It is
conduct and not occupation that should be criticised. Without the
capital and the big interests human
progress and development would be
in a bad way.

HEED THE WARNING!

Backache is the Signal that Kidney Diseases are
Nigh

Who doesn't dread the advanced
stages of kidney troubles—Bright's
disease, diabetes, dropsy and gravel.
But today, throughout America, there
are tens of thousands suffering the
torments of hopeless agony just be-
cause they failed to heed the first
signal, the certain warning of future
misery—backache.

Backache means that your kidneys
are weak; they may have become in-
flamed from cold or injury, but in
all probability they are stuffed up,
clogged with impurities from the
blood, for you know, of course, that
the blood passes through the kidneys
every few minutes, and that the kidneys strain the blood of its impuri-
ties which pass out in the urine.
Stop kidney diseases at the start,
that's the easiest way, and Thomp-
son's Backache is the surest remedy.
W. F. Hennings sells it, and is willing to guarantee it to stop backache,
sideache, and sharp shooting pains,
and to cure Bright's disease, and end
all kidney, liver and bladder trouble,
or money back.

It is a great maker of pure blood,
and a builder of flesh, because it promptly cleans the kidneys, and puts
them in such perfect condition that
the impurities are thoroughly strain-
ed from the blood as it passes through
and are promptly eliminated with the urine. Thompson's Backache is only 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. W. F.

Them by Their Ancestors.

Every automobilist knows that when
his car approaches a hen instead of
calmly stepping to the side of the road
and waiting in line, she runs out of the way. She runs along ahead in hysterical excitement, doing what she should have
done in the first place only when completely exhausted and then only by accident apparently. Other domestic
animals have the same annoying habit,
and as it often causes their wholly
needless death, the usual explanation
of it is their stupidity. That is an un-
fair criticism, for neither birds nor
animals are ever stupid—never are,
that is, about meeting exigencies
which their ancestors were in the habit
of meeting.

It is the lesson of immemorial experience for all these creatures that from
the pursuit of an enemy that cannot
be fought there is safety if anywhere
in straightaway flight at topmost
speed. Motion in any other direction
would give the pursuer a fatal advantage by enabling him to "cut corners"
and cover a shorter distance than his
selected prey. The hen's mistake is
not in running along the road, but in
assuming that the automobile wants
to catch her and will do so if it can.
That assumption is a perfectly natural
one, and every living hen is the de-
scendant of innumerable generations
of hens that acted upon it exactly as
she does.—New York Times.

GOLD LEAF.

Made Now Practically as It Was Made
Nine Centuries Ago.

In an article on gold leaf in the Mar-azine of Commerce John Martin says
that just as the date of the discovery
of gold is too remote even to be guessed at so is the origin of gold leaf too
in antiquity.

On some of the most ancient num-ismats discovered gold leaf has been used on the skin, tongue, teeth, etc., and in some instances on the coins also.
It also appears on tombs, monuments
and the like, and strange to say,
though gilding with thin sheets of
hammered gold and "skins of gold"—
otherwise gold leaf—was known to be
practiced at least in the eighth century B. C., the process of bringing the
gold into these fine sheets or "skins"
was, at any rate in the eleventh century A. D., substantially the same as
that used today, no advance whatever
having been made in the intervening
nine centuries.

Further, on some of the Grecian pot-
tery of the fifth century the gold leaf
used is as thin as that used today, so that in results obtained also we have
not advanced in the least, but still keep
practically to the same average thickness as that used on the Egyptian cof-
fins of the third century A. D. and
most of the Greek vases of the fifth.

Brougham and Muffled Port.

Lord Brougham who as a member
of the house of commons was a most
glib-tongued man, upon his promotion to the peerage acquired less commendable habits. During his long and impassioned appeal to the lords to refrain from rejecting the reform bill
of 1832 "five numbers of muffled port,
with a dash of brandy, were brought
to him at intervals." When he came
to his last sentence "I warn you, I implore you—yes, on my bended knee
I supplicate you—reject not this bill!"
he knelt on the woodcock, whence he
slipped to the floor. It is recorded in the "Lives of the Lord Chamberlains"
that "he remained some time as if in
prayer, but his friends, alarmed lest
he should be suffering from the effects
of muffled port, picked him up and
placed him safely on the woodcock."

When the Barber Was a Wit.

In original literature the barber is
a great figure, and Arabian tales are
full of him. In Italy and Spain he was
often the brightest man in town, and
his shop was headquarters for wit
and intrigue. Jasquin became famous as a poet in southern France and
recited his verses with razor, scissors,
brush and comical gesture as he dressed
the hair of fine ladies and gentle-
men in his shop. He had a great run,
made money, lived fame, and Smiles
made a book about him.

YOUNG MEN ARE WANTED FOR OFFICE POSITIONS

Never in the past ten years has the demand for young men
been so great as at the present time. Every young man or boy
who has finished our course in bookkeeping, shorthand and
typewriting, is today in a good position, some of them starting

Young men wishing to make the most of their opportunities should consider the advantages a course in this school offers them. The courses are thorough and include everything
necessary for a complete commercial education.

Young ladies who wish to be independent and self-supporting should also consider the advantages of a commercial education. A knowledge of shorthand, typewriting and bookkeeping will do more for a girl who wants to make real money than a college education.

TESTING FIRE CLAY.

The Most Practical Method is to Literally Eat It.

Fire clay has been in use for centuries, and yet I believe the industry
is one which lacks definite laws more
than any other, including those which
are either modern or ancient and of
less prominence. You can go to a
manufacturer of steel and specify
what you want by actual figures or
statements and you can check the prod-
uct by chemical analysis or mechanical
tests and thus make sure you get what
you need. The producer knows how to
combine certain elements and what
quantities of various kinds to combine
in order to get a result at least very
closely approaching what you call for,
but not so in the fire-clay business. In
the past the most skilled and highest
skilled chemists have been employed
to make tests, to promote and carry
through investigations on the natural
product and to study the workings of
certain manufactured and elaborated
articles derived therefrom. The result
has been, generally speaking, confusion
worse confounded. Two professors,
working at similar times on brick or
clay obtained from the same source
and manufactured under exactly equal
conditions, have recorded diametrically
opposed conclusions. The same scientists at different periods have reached
vastly varying conclusions when testing identical qualities and shapes of
bricks, so can you wonder if a prominent fire clay manufacturer should ex-
claim, as I heard one on an occasion
after having the above experience,
"All tests of fire clay are empirical, and
I would sooner trust our superintendent
to pick and select his clays in the
old fashioned way than pay a high fee
for a highbrow's recommendations?"
The chief method of testing fire clay
by a practical man is literally to eat
it. He can detect grit and sand best
by that method, and a good fire clay (free from silica, quartzite or flint
clay) is free from grit. His only other
personal test is by experiment—Engineering Magazine.

Decision of character will often give an inferior mind command over a superior. Witt.

WHISTLER TALES.

The Amusing Peculiarities of the Economic Artist.

BRING OUT BILL BEARERS.

Knew the Knock of Each Collector and the Amount It Represented.

here was a steady stream of fresh at the King street studio in these days, says a writer in the Century. He made no effort to conceal the fact that he was deeply in debt. One day as we were busily and silently working there came a loud business rap at the door. Whistler listened intently.

"Yes!" said he. "That's one and a half!"

"What on earth do you mean?" I asked after a time.

One pound ten shillings; two pounds six shillings. Vulgar traders with their bills, colonel. They at payment. Ah, well!" he sighed with an exaggerated air of sadness.

returned to his canvas.

ben came another knock, a most tedious, insinuating rap.

Dear me," said Whistler. "that must all of twenty! Poor fellow, I really do something for him! So sorry not in."

could not take the situation so lightly and seized eagerly the first opportunity of financial aid that presented itself.

A rich American, soaming in London, asked me what could purchase and take back with in the way of art.

By all means get a set of Whistler's things. Unquestionably he will be for you a selection. I'll speak to him," I told him, and hurried back to the good news.

I expostulated in vain. "Come, Whistler," I said finally, "you have been away from America so long that you don't appreciate the value of time to the traveler, particularly the American traveler. You must not keep the man waiting."

"Very well," said he, laying down his brush, with a sigh. "Now we'll go."

"Why we?" I replied. "I don't want to go," I protested firmly. To tell the truth, I was looking forward with a great deal of comfort to a morning all to myself.

"Oh, but you must," he said calmly, bringing my coat and hat, and presently we stood in front of the house signaling a cab.

One came up readily enough, but after one scrutinizing look upon the cabby's part, drove swiftly by; another went through the same strange proceedings. I looked questioningly at Whistler—this odd circumstance had happened before we were together—but Whistler was calmly signaling. At length a cabby took us in.

Whistler always carried as a walking stick a long, slender wand, a sort of a mahlstick, nearly three-quarters of his own height. We were no sooner seated than he began poking his stick at the horse. The animal reared, plunged wildly and started down the street at a breakneck gallop, while the astonished cabby swore freely and tugged desperately at the reins.

Whistler looked calmly ahead and kept poking.

Butcher boys and grocer boys made wild leaps for safety; outraged cabbies whipped their horses out of the way just in time; burly draymen bawled curses after us, and still we went merrily on. Little wonder, thought I, in the midst of my amazement and resentment, that Whistler never gets the same cab twice.

Suddenly he began waving his cane and shouting "Whoa!" He took the astonished cabby severely to task for driving so fast upon the public highway and ordered him back to a corner we had just passed.

Here a greengrocer's shop, with its orderly and colorful array of fruits and vegetables, had caught Whistler's eye as we whirled by. He surveyed it critically now from two different positions, the cabby merely obeying his orders, under the belief, I presume, that it was policy to humor a lunatic.

"Isn't it beautiful?" exclaimed Whistler. He pointed his long cane at one corner. "I believe I'll have that crate of oranges moved over there—against that background of green. Yes, that's better," he added contentedly.

The incident at the greengrocer's shop reads like an arrant affectation. It was not, however, Whistler, as usual, was merely most natural. The following morning he posted his easel at the corner and painted the shop that pleased him.

Four Human Nature. The woman who had succeeded in that rather difficult task—making a boarding house pay—was confounding to a friend some of the tricks of the trade.

"While you must never allow your boarders to get too far behind in their payments, it is also true that you will profit considerably by allowing them a little leeway. So long as you are sure of your money it pays a landlady to have her boarders a week or two behind in their board."

"I don't see that," interrupted her friend.

"Well, I'll tell you," continued the landlady. "When a man owes back board you have him at a certain disadvantage. Not one in a hundred under such circumstances has the nerve at meal-times to ask for a second helping."

—New York Times.

The Human Lobster. The lobster has always appealed to the Englishman as affording a nickname for his fellow Englishman.

"Lobster" was a favorite term of abuse among the Elizabethans, though it is only conjectured that an allusion to red faces was conveyed. As signifying a soldier, "lobster" originated in the civil war, being applied to the Roundhead cuirassiers, as Clarendon explains, "because of the bright iron shells with which they were covered."

Afterward the allusion was transferred to the soldier's red uniform. But that was the "boiled lobster." The "raw lobster" was naturally the man in blue, the policeman. In earlier days we find Grose explaining that "to boil one's lobster" meant for a clergyman to become a soldier.—London Chronicle.

Didn't Hide His Joy. Janet—Viola says there was only one drawback to her wedding. Fanny—What was that? Janet—She says her father looked too cheerful when he gave her away.—Boston Globe.

Title and ancestry render a good man more illustrious, but an ill one more contemptible.—Addison.

The Rolling Ocean. She—Shall I have your lunch brought up to you here, dear? He (feebly)—No, love; have it thrown straight overboard. It will save time and trouble.—London Sketch.

Effective Home Cure for Tuberculosis

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only tremendously expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends and return to their homes.

Eckman's Alternative is effective in curing Bronchitis, Asthma and more serious affections of the lungs. No leaving home and friends is necessary. For instance: 221 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J. Gentlemen: In the Fall of 1905, I contracted a very severe cold which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alternative and I began to take it at once, and in the last week in October, I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now four years since my cure has been effected and I cannot praise Eckman's Alternative too highly. I have recommended it to others with excellent results.

(Signed) W. M. TATEM. Eckman's Alternative is good for all Throat and Lung troubles, and is on sale in Charleroi by W. F. Hennings and other druggists. It can also be obtained at or procured from your local druggist. Ask for Booklet of Cases or write for evidence to the Eckman Laboratory, Phila. Pa.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one druggist who can cure the most stubborn cases of Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and restoring nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A CHINESE BANQUET.

One moment we were eating ducks' eggs whose blackened, lime flavored whites indicated that their age was unimpeachable; the next we were grappling with sea weeds, macarons and the slippery sharks' fins that eluded our clumsily manipulated sticks. Now we tackled--not without fear--unknown meats and vegetables cooked in sugar, fresh shrimps, mushrooms from Mongolia, young bamboo sprouts, piggeous' eggs and a hundred different foreign tasting messes. Then clean plates were given to us, and bowls of sickly pink sirup, sweet potato and Indian corn cakes of dusky hue were set before each one. These were only crevice fillers and concluded the first and lighter portion of the repast. Now came the real substantial meal, wherein every dish had an accompaniment of smaller ones, containing gravies, etc., in which to dip the morsel taken from the central bowl.

There was stewed duck cooked without salt, roast sucking pig, forcemeat balls and chicken; there were soups of birds' nest, of mushroom, of vegetables and of sea slugs. There was grilled fresh water fish, which, according to custom, was helped from the top side only, for the Chinese remembers his servant. And, finally, at the conclusion the inevitable small bowl of rice and rice water was set before each person.

After some three hours, with a feeling of thankfulness that all was over, pipes, cigarettes and tea were served, and it seemed to me that the delicious aroma which rose from the latter soothed our senses and almost dispelled the antipathy that had been growing on us for all things Chinese. Mary Moore in London Express.

The Kind Needed.

"Dear me," said the first young woman, taking her initial lesson in golf. "What shall I do now? This ball is in a hole."

"Well, let me see," said her companion, rapidly turning the leaves of a book of instructions. "I presume you will have to take a stick of the right shape to get it out."

"Oh, yes; of course," was the somewhat cynical reply. "Well, see if you can find one shaped like a dustpan and brush."--New York Tribune.

Kissing in Iceland.

Among old time laws against kissing those of Iceland appear to have been the most severe. Banishment was the penalty laid down for kissing another man's wife, either with or without her consent. The same punishment was enforced for kissing an unmarried woman against her will; if it could be proved that she had consented to be kissed the offender was still liable to a fine of a great quantity of cloth for each offense.

A Fairly Good Appetite.

Kafirs, North American Indians and the fat boy in "Pickwick" may well be quoted as fearful examples of voracity, but even their gastronomic feats are exceeded by the full grown Eskimo, who will daily eat twenty pounds of flesh and oil if he has the chance, while on the authority of Admiral Siricheff a Yakut of Siberia has been known to consume in twenty-four hours "the hind quarter of a large ox, twenty pounds of fat and a quantity of melted butter for his drink."

To Be Avoided.

"There's Wilson! Let us turn back. I've no desire to meet that fellow again! Last week I asked him to lend me five pounds."

"Well, he certainly might have done so; he has plenty of money."

"Yes, I know--and he did lend me the money."--London Mail.

A Strategist.

"That fellow is a greater strategist than Napoleon ever was."

"As to how?"

"He got a two dollar raise of salary a year ago and hasn't told his wife about it yet."--Pittsburg Post.

STREET CAR CO.

HELPS FIREMAN

Through the efforts of Inspector Con Buchanan the Pittsburg Railway company did some quick work in affording transportation to Charleroi firemen to the Stockdale fire last evening. As soon as the call for help was received Chief J. M. Fleming telephoned to the car barn, and within ten minutes a car was at the disposal of the company. The building at Stockdale where the fire originated had been entirely consumed and the flames prevented from spreading by tearing down an intervening structure, otherwise the Charleroi firemen could have rendered effective service.
